

Subscription to the forum

Once you enroll to the courses, you are automatically subscribed to the main forum Announcements , so you will receive all information posted on that forum to your student email address.

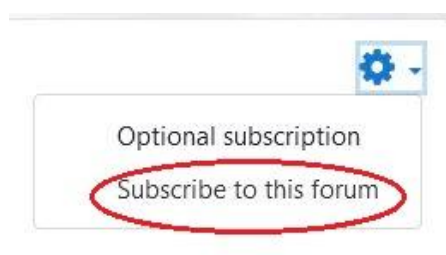

Besides the courses you signed-into, all students are automatically enrolled in Notice board MF

Here you can find common Current events from Departments as well as General information and Materials from relevant Departments. That is, information and data that are not directly linked to only specific course. In order to subscribe to a forum Current events from Departments you should click to the relevant Department and then to Current events – Department of, and then on gear icon in the right corner:

The following window will open:

Click subscribe to this forum to receive all information posted on this forum to your email.

If you don't want to receive email information from any of Departments' forums, just click Unsubscribe from this forum

